

Harold Schimmel The Library

Photographs: Avigail Schimmel

הוא הרים את
סנטרו והצביע על "הקנים"
ערוכים בשורה על
סוף שהם חלק
מספרות עמוד שורה של
ספריה כמעין זו
הרדוש ספת יון
עם תוספת אי סאילאריס
צלום אורר תגם
נרע שהקנים לא
הם הקנים אלא כל
סה שנשאר סאלו
שקח כמו שהם
את עצמם תארזו כאלו
הכרכים הסבילים גם
שרידי מלים והקלבי
אותיות השוות בערך לכתובת
של עמוד על
צד כיון נים
ולפעמים משם נלקח ולקח
נעשה במשקל השורה

he lifted his chin
and pointed to "the Greeks" aligned in a row on a shelf part and parcel of literature spinal cord of a library similar to this one and a map of Greece is required supplemented by the island Salamis aerial photo also we should know the Greeks are not the Greeks but all that remains of those that were as they themselves described themselves in these volumes that also contain remnants of words and parts of letters equivalent more-or-less to an inscription on a column on its side in present-day Greece and often from there was taken copied

here in line's meter

Fabio Mauri

"American greatness imposes its dimensions in inches, not in centimeters. I felt a wise and ill-humored Europe, inclined toward keeping things private. Installing something great in a universe set on staying local is a real feat. I was happy in New York. . . . The only problem: smoking My smoking is like thinking. It gets dispersed in the objective whole A thought does not consume you, it unleashes other thoughts; you wonder what there is to wonder: an uncertain cigarette, whether or not to go on smoking it or to put it out.

Artist page -----> 50, 51